U.S. INSPECTORS RIGHT ON JOB

Three Experts Come to Enforce Government Regulations in Sanitary Zone.

Three federal sanitary inspectors—J. J. Collins, A. G. Rickerfer and August Maignaud—arrived in the city Tuesday night from New Orleans. The purpose of their visit is to see that the regulations that have been issued by the United States public health service are carried out in toto, these inspectors being directed to come to Chattanooga and see that such places as restaurants, hotels, public eating places and barber shops comply with the rulings.

It is true that Chattanooga never had a case of the bubonic plague, but the three special inspectors here are the original inspectors that stamped out an epidemic of this awful plague in New Orleans in 1914.

One of the trained inspectors served as a rat catcher during that time and another as a ratproofing inspector. They haven't come to this part of the country "rat hunting," but if any pass in their path it will be "good-bye rats."

In talking of the plague the inspectors said that the United States department of health officials at work in New Orleans ever since the epidemic in 1914. During the first year the department had 300 inspectors. Recently the force has been greatly reduced by a number being sent to various cantonment zones for work.

To look for a rat now in New Orleans is just like looking for a five-dollar bill," said one of the inspectors. He said the traps placed in the various buildings wouldn't average catching over two rats a day. Every person was made to make their house or building rat-proof. They had to comply with the law, as the inspection was most rigid.

These three inspectors will visit every restaurant, hotel and barber shop in town, and if they find, at any time, an employer not coming up to the requirements he will be arrested.

Barbers Meet.
A meeting of the barbers was held Tuesday evening in the courthouse auditorium, at which time Dr. Thomas Parran, of the United States public health service, gave a talk in which he explained just what would be expected of the barbers in Chattanooga, the reasons for each regulation and the necessity for carrying it out, and what the result would mean if they failed to do so. Dr. Parran emphasized very strongly the fact that the regulations had not only been passed as city ordinances, but that they were federal regulations, gotten out by the United States government.

He said that about two-thirds of all the barbers in town had been examined physically, and that so far they had shown up well.

Special attention was called to the antispitting rules, and Dr. Parran said that this must be observed on barber shops as well as in other places. He said further if anyone is caught spitting on the floor of any public place he will be arrested and prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Antispitting signs will be posted in all public buildings.

"THE CRUCIFIXION," BY SERBIAN ARTIST

This picture is a copy of the work of M. Mestrovic, a Serbian artist, which is on exhibition in Grafton Gallery, London.

Thursday evening in the courthouse auditorium, at which time Dr. Thomas Parran, of the United States public health service, gave a talk in which he explained just what would be expected of the barbers in Chattanooga, the reasons for each regulation and the necessity for carrying it out, and what the result would mean if they failed to do so.

THREE FRENCH WAYS OF COOKING POTATOES

Lenox Potatoes.
2 cups diced cooked potatoes,
3 tablespoons butter,
1-2 teaspoon salt.
Pepper.

1-4 cups thin cream.
2 tablespoons pimento strips.
1-2 cup grated American cheese.

Mix the potatoes, butter, salt and pepper in a saucepan, add the cream, which should nearly cover them, and cook very slowly until the cream is nearly absorbed. Turn into a slightly buttered baking dish, sprinkle the pimento and cheese over the top and cook until the cheese is melted and browned. Serve at once.

2-2 cups cold mashed potatoes.
1-4 cup warm milk.
1 egg white.
6 thin slices bacon.

1-4 cup grated cheese.
Salt and pepper.
Add the milk to the potatoes and beat until thoroughly blended. Fold in the egg white, beaten stiff, with a little salt and pepper. Turn into a shallow baking dish well oiled with bacon fat. Sprinkle with the cheese, lay the slices of bacon over all and cook in a moderate oven about twenty minutes, or until the potatoes are crisp and the potatoes are heated through.

Stuffed Potato Timbales.
1 pound cooked potatoes.
1 tablespoonful butter or substitute.
Yolk of 1 egg.
Pepper and salt.

Rub the cooked potatoes through a wire sieve. Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the potato and the yolk of the egg, season with salt and pepper and stir over the fire until thoroughly mixed and hot. Butter some earthenware cups, line them thickly with the potato mixture, leaving a hollow in the center. Fry some cold rice in a butter substitute until brown; mix with it two tablespoonfuls of chili sauce. Fill the centers of the cups with this mixture, cover the top with a layer of potato and place in the oven to brown. Turn them out on a platter and pour brown sauce around them. Serve hot. Chopped cooked meat may be used in place of the rice.
